Is there a better way to do this in java? I'm trying to find the shortest amount of code that will do the same thing. String input = new String(myString); String output = new String(input.concat(myString)); A: You can use String.format: String output = String.format("%s%s", input, myString); Also consider using StringBuilder, StringBuffer, or other String-like classes instead of concatenating strings. In the wake of a series of deadly mass shootings in El Paso, Texas, and Dayton, Ohio, over the weekend, politicians and pundits have understandably focused on the need for guns to be banned. But the solution to mass shootings is far more deeply rooted in the nature of the American experiment itself, and in the form of a tragic cultural deficiency which results from that experiment. It starts with the truth about America. America is a place where people are free to pursue dreams, but not free from fear. It's a place where people get to pursue their own dreams, but also where their dreams are constantly undermined. It's a place where people live in a free and open society, but also where 82157476af
